Waldo Baptist Church Thanksgiving Dinner for Seniors

The senior citizens of Waldo have so much to be thankful for. Not the least of which is the dinner put on by the Waldo Baptist Church, the Thursday before Thanksgiving.

This year's event couldn't have been better if we'd all been asked to make our wish-list available to the wonderful people of the Challenger Circle.

How many seniors get invited to a Thanksgiving Dinner, and are served an absolutely delicious turkey dinner by very polite and attentive young people, each of whom cater to your every wish? More tea? Coffee? Yes, Ma'am. After clearing our plates, dessert was served, with your choice of Apple, Pumpkin, Pecan, Strawberry-Rhubarb (to die for) pie.

The incredible entertainment furnished by the one and only Rev. Jim DuBois, brought us up-to-date on the latest activities of Agnes and Alma, the "Cousins."

But wait! There's more! A drawing for prizes. Wonderful, thoughtful, valuable prizes. Can it get any better? As the lucky numbers are drawn and called, that same wonderful preacher (along with others), actually hand-delivers your prize, while other numbers are being drawn. So many prizes. And then we are asked if anyone didn't get a prize, to raise their hand. Those people had their choice of one of the exquisite pies to take home. Mmm mmm mmmm.

The Challenger Circle and the Waldo Baptist Church deserve a loud and grateful round of applause by the seniors of Waldo. It just doesn't get any better.

Waldo Fire Department

Alachua County and the City of Waldo celebrated the new Waldo Fire Department ground breaking on Friday November 4, 2016. This project shows what the County and City can accomplish while working together for the good of all citizens. The new Fire Department will be a beautiful asset to the City of Waldo. It will be located on the corner of US Hwy 301 and NE 144th Ave. The agreement called for the City of Waldo to furnish the land and the County would build the station. The City had a parcel in the new location and the late J. D. Griffis owned the rest of the surrounding property. Mr. Griffis donated a portion and the City donated their lot so the fire department had a future home.

The old Fire Department will now house Waldo's Public Works Department.

All the gifts in the Twelve Days of Christmas would equal 364 gifts.

According to the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), there are 2,106 million children under age 18 in the world. If there are on average 2.5 children per household, Santa would have to make 842 million stops on Christmas Eve, traveling 221 million miles. To reach all 842 million stops, Santa would need to travel between houses in 2/10,000/second, which means he would need to accelerate 12.19 million miles (20.5 billion meters) per second on each stop. The force of this acceleration would reduce Santa to "chunky salsa."

Oklahoma was the last U.S. state to declare Christmas a legal holiday, in 1907.

History Revealed: Profile of an Historic Waldo Home and its Inhabitants, Part I Ellie Floyd

It sits high on Cracker Hill, an imposing edifice beckoning the visitor to discover its secrets... at least, that's how I felt upon seeing our home, the Seigler-Kinzer house, for the first time. It is only a block from State Road 24, but is shielded by the old Seay bungalow and its massive, sprawling oak across a limerock road. Just beyond our backyard, the old Granger house and its tree canopy provide a picturesque borrowed landscape.

The frame vernacular-style dwelling began as a simple gable-front shape, two rooms deep. A western addition transformed it into a gable-front-and-wing, though it has an irregular plan due to later additions on the south side. Much of the original cypress drop-siding remains on the exterior of this traditionally white house, while decorative corbels under the eaves of the old shingle and tin roof give it a Folk-Victorian feel. The wraparound front porch has undergone several alterations, and as the ceiling paint begins to shed its most recent layer, the "haint blue" underneath is being revealed. In the southern tradition, that shade was thought to ward off spirits.

Andrew and I may be only the third family group to own this house in Sparkman's Addition during its 120+ year history, having purchased the nearly half-acre lot from the Womeldorf family two years ago. We are undertaking a part renovation/part restoration of the old house, which is recorded in the Florida Master Site File as an architecturally significant structure for the town of Waldo. This project has been a humbling and eye-opening experience; discovering the lives of those who dwelt in this house while revealing its physical layers gives every board and nail meaning.

The exact date of construction and builder of the house is uncertain. The land the house sits upon was first owned by the Florida Railroad Company before it was transferred, by trustees Soutter and McRae, to the Blakes in 1867. Peter William Washington Sparkman became the landholder in 1871, and owned a grist mill and packing plant near his home in this area. Over the next ten years, the land subsequently passed through the hands of Robert Weeks, Abraham Crosby, and James Sparkman. In 1881, P.W.W. Sparkman reacquired the land; he divided the uniquely-shaped parcel, lying between the Transit and Peninsular Railroads, into multiple lots.

From 1881 to 1884, a section of lots R, S, T, and U in Sparkman's Addition was owned by Mary Weeks, then Julia Blackstock, and later James Weeks. Our house is on lot U, which was not sold individually until James Weeks deeded it to Lula Seigler for $500 in 1894. He'd sold lots R, S, and T combined for the same price in 1890, which seems to suggest that a structure was already in existence on Lot U when Seigler purchased it. Conversely, her family would own the property for 47 years, a much longer period during which to create a home. Charles Womeldorf, who most recently owned the house, remembers a conversation he had with Lula Seigler's daughter, Isla: she said she was a young girl when her father, William David Seigler, built the house. At the same time, he recollects seeing an old window on the second floor etched with the year "1870." This raises the question of whether the house was constructed with materials taken from an older home, or whether the Seiglers simply added onto an existing building. At the very least, we are certain that the rear kitchen addition was built under their ownership, as old boards we exposed in the ceiling there were inscribed: "Mrs. L.D. Seigler, Waldo, Fla."

Lula A. Deupree and William David Seigler were married in 1885 at the First Baptist Church of Gainesville, having children Isla in 1889 and Harry David in 1891. The family unit lived in the town of Waldo from at least 1891 on, and at some point before moving to the house in Sparkman's Addition, William had lived in the "J.B. Schuman" house, likely while it was under the ownership of C.K. Dutton. The design of that house, now owned by Mary Baxla, bears similarities to ours.

Lula was born in Ladonia, Texas in 1860 to Elijah Deupree, a dry goods merchant, and his wife, Harriet. The Deuprees lived for a time in Mississippi before moving to Gainesville in 1878. After Elijah's death in 1896, Harriet joined her daughter Lula's new family in their Cracker Hill home; she lived here with them until her death in 1920.

William, or W.D., was born in 1857 in Florida, his family being settled in Putnam County by 1860. His parents, Marshal Seigler and Permelia Ellen Johnson, hailed from South Carolina. Marshal, who would later become a co-founder of the Etoniah Canal and Drainage Company, began his career as a general merchant in Waldo. His business was called Seigler & Johnson, his partner likely his brother-in-law. He notably employed William Baxter Phifer, who later opened his own store in Waldo with Marshal's son, W.D. In 1882, the young merchants sold that business and opened Seigler & Phifer in Gainesville. Their ad appeared in the 1883 publication, The Eden of the South. At the end of that year, they closed their Gainesville store and began a new venture in Rochelle. How long they remained partners is unclear.

Phifer eventually went into business with his brothers, and together they opened the Phifer State Bank.

W.D. ultimately became a general merchant in his own right. His Waldo store purveyed, among other goods; boots, fashions, paints, fertilizer, and groceries like Ballard's Obelisk flour. The Gainesville Daily Sun of 1905 called him "one of the oldest established and most successful merchants of Waldo." He was a Mason, as well as an early member of the Odd Fellows, Union Lodge, No. 2.

The Seiglers were much involved in the social events taking place in Waldo just after the turn of the century. For the crystal wedding of the Langs in March 1907, Lula Seigler assisted in receiving the guests, and at the twentieth anniversary of the Grangers on May 4th, her daughter Isla Seigler helped serve the luncheon. A gem of an article appeared in the February 3rd, 1907 issue of the Sun about an "Old Ladies' Tea Party" given in the home of Mrs. Seigler. The party was comprised of "eleven ladies whose united ages amounted to 760 years."

A Move to Waldo A Nice and Charming Surprise By Logan Fernandez- Smith

When I first found out that my family and I were moving to Waldo, I asked "Where's Waldo?" I had never heard of the place. The first thing I noticed was how small the town was: a few restaurants, a few gas stations, a few neighborhoods, and a closed down school, and no high speed digital internet. You wouldn't think much of it.

But then, after a while, you realize the beauty of the place. The neighborhoods are always quiet, except for the train that goes by at night, constant as a midsummer rain. The houses are nice and affordable, many of them being older and having histories spanning a hundred years. Every morning when I leave for school there's always a reflective sign at the old Cigar Factory, giving me something to think about.

The people are nice and kind, I get a good morning from my neighbors when I pass by their homes. The lake is magnificent, and a great spot to fish depending on where you go. The neighborhoods are filled with diverse greenery and colorful flowers, making a walk around town a place of natural discoveries if you know where to look.

The library is within walking distance, a nice perk to the move since they allow me to rent free books and movies for up to two weeks.

I like Waldo. I believe it is a great place to live. I'm excited to be given the opportunity to write for Waldo. I'm excited to learn, discover and share with you all the treasures that Waldo has to offer. Whatever it is I write in the future, I hope you enjoy it. That is my goal.

Waldo Eastern Star Chapter 120 Hosts Official Inspection

by Mary Baxla

October found Waldo Eastern Star Chapter 120 ladies and gents to be the target of an Official Inspection by the Grand Chapter of Florida. This is an annual undertaking for the purpose of examining the records and work of the Chapter throughout the past year. It's a big deal---kind of like an audit in a less social business world---and not necessarily looked forward to.

Prior to the Chapter's usual Monday 7:30 business meeting all books maintained by the Chapter's Secretary and Treasurer were reviewed by Sister Sharon Strosnider, Associate Grand Conductress, accompanied by Sister Dee Laird, Past Grand Matron, both of the Grand Chapter of Florida.

Following a successful review of Chapter books, Chapter 120 hosted a members and guests dinner at Starke Steakhouse.

Dinner attendees included Eastern Star members from Waldo #120, Keystone Heights # 279. Gainesville # 44 and # 310, as well as additional visiting officers of the Florida Grand Chapter and appointees of the General (International) Grand chapter.

After dinner it was back to our business meeting at the Waldo Masonic Lodge, presided over by Chapter Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron, Sheila and Bill Coleman. Following further review of Chapter members' work. Sister Sharon thanked everyone for participating and complimented members on their work, with a special thanks to Brother Bob Hodgson, Associate Patron, for his outstanding work.

Before adjournment the Inspecting Officer was honored with Waldo member David Mikulski's breath-taking performance of a Josh Groban song "You Raise Me Up".

Waldo 120 is a small chapter but what it lacks in size it does make up for in a friendly atmosphere, kind and caring members and always lots of great food. After delicious refreshments and lots of talk, everyone went home stuffed and happy. (And it really wasn't as bad as an audit.)

Anyone who would like to know more about the Order of the Eastern Star is invited to call Waldo 120's current Worthy Matron, Sheila Coleman, at 9367 859-8592 or Secretary, Mary Baxla at 352 468-2731.

Artificial Christmas trees have outsold real ones since 1991.
