WHS News

The Third Annual Quilt Show turned out to be much more successful than we anticipated. With double the quilters entering more quilts than we had last year, and many more people coming to see what they had done, the Waldo Community Center was, shall I say, "very very full."

Our Intermediate winners were: Richard Levin, 1st place, Ida Bivins, 2nd place, and Sally Buchan, 3rd place. Beginner winners: Betty Conrad, 1st place, Susie Clark, 2nd place, and Catherine Koehler, 3rd place. Also, Audyn Woodington, Grand Prize Jr. Beginner, and Arley Bryant, Special Prize Jr. Beginner.

Judging was done by our most competent Judge, Linda Lawson, of Starke.

DON'T MISS THE WALDO REUNION

The next WALDO REUNION will be held Saturday, July 14th, at the Waldo Masonic Lodge, beginning with dinner at 6:00 p.m.

The reunion is for anyone who lives or has ever lived in or around Waldo. Last year many folks were able to visit with friends from long ago. Some hadn't seen each other for many, many years.

We are planning much more of the "oldies" music this year and hope many will be brave and "twist and dance" (or just watch) and have lots of fun with the activities and just visiting with old and new friends.

If you haven't done so, you might be interested in joining the fun "Waldo, Florida" Facebook site, where there are interesting conversations, cool Waldo pictures, and information about the reunion.

If you would like to come to the reunion, please mail $15 (check payable to Mary Ellen Johnson) to Mary Ellen Johnson, 10030 SW 35th PL, Gainesville, FL 32608, no later than July 1st. You can also give the money to any committee member:

Cheryl Shearouse Johnson, Rama Estes Haines, Mary Sue Holton Rister, Linda Hall Vlacos, or Barbara Gwin Hyder.

We are expecting people from Washington, D.C., Texas, and other places. It will be a fun, exciting time! Please join in and tell others about the reunion.

Florida Heritage Trail booklet series

Submitted by Fred Donaldson

There are three booklets available from the Fl. Dept. of State in Tallahassee that are available for free with no postage charge if you call 1-800-847-7278. They are all excellent and a historical document in itself. They are:

1. Florida Civil War Heritage Trail
2. Florida World War II Heritage Trail
3. Florida Women's Heritage Trail

Waldo is mentioned on p. 25 in the Civil War booklet pertaining to Capt. J. J. Dickison and Davis's baggage train. Copies of these should be in all school libraries as excellent resource material.

MAYOR LOUIE DAVIS
"VETERAN OF THE DAY" AT DISNEY WORLD

by Diana Davis

On May 31, 2012, we went to Disney World for a special occasion. In our family when someone is potty trained we celebrate. Caleb Morgan Jacobs, our 3 year old great grandson, made that milestone. Of course all of us go for the celebration, because Disney World is a whole lot more fun "through the eyes of a child."

Unbeknown to us something else would happen to add to the occasion.

When we arrived that morning, Louie had on his army veteran's hat. A gentleman came up to him and was asking him questions about his military service, what he did in the service and where he was stationed. He then explained to Louie he was with Disney and would like to honor him with "Veteran of the Day at Disney World."

This was a very big honor. At 5:00 PM when they retire the colors, Louie was there to help perform the ceremony. The Pledge of Allegiance was said, the Star Spangled banner was played by the Disney World Band, and the flag was brought down and folded. They introduced Louie and told of his military service. Then they played America the Beautiful. The flag was then handed to Louie by the honor guard to carry.

The band then turned to walk down Main Street. Louie fell in behind them, holding the flag, and was followed by the honor guard.

Then his family followed behind to walk in the parade on Main Street in Disney World. Diana Davis (wife), Pam Burnsed and Lori Ann Tidwell (daughters'), Ray Burnsed (son-n-Law), Kristen Burnsed Jacobs, Robby Jacobs, Benjamin Burnsed, Rebekah Burnsed, Annalee Tidwell (grandchildren), and great grandsons, Caleb and Wyatt Jacobs.

Louie was given a special pin that stated he was "Veteran of the Day at Disney World." He received a special "Certificate of Appreciation from Disney World," and an 8x10 picture of the occasion. It was a very patriotic, memorable, and special time for us all.

It touched our hearts and brought tears to our eyes. It reminded me that we need to remember those more, who sacrificed their time and also gave the ultimate sacrifice, so we can have special times like this.

Old Waldo Bakery
Bread Pans

Donated to WHS
by Bob Williams

According to Mr. Williams, these bread pans came from a bake shop that was next door East from Alexander's store. "Charles and Olive McDermott were the bakers and were in business when I first went to town. Not sure how long they operated. City hall was next with vacant spot between the two red brick buildings. (Alexander and Sparkman's).

Anyone with any knowledge of this bakery, please tell us what you know.

Reminder!
The next Waldo Historical Society meeting will be Thursday, July 26 Waldo Community Center - 7 pm
Refreshments always available
More than just coffee. Good food to enjoy during the meeting.

Happy Birthday

Louise Wilson

Submitted by Chanita Ross

A Surprise 90th Birthday Celebration planned for months almost didn't happen.

The Birthday Girl didn't want any more parties. Louise stated that she had a beautiful party at the age of seventy five and she didn't want any more parties.

I made her a hair appointment. She told me to cancel it because she wasn't going anywhere on Saturday. I told her that a family member's birthday was Saturday and she told me to take a gift and card to the party because she didn't feel the best.

One hour before the surprise party at the Waldo community Center was to take place, she still wasn't going anywhere. By this time, I didn't know what to do, so I called my cousin, Mary Aiken, crying. "I don't know what to do. Will you please see what you can do with Mom."

She called her mother, Martha Wilson, who went over to Mom and asked her to please go to the family member's party, so she would have someone to be with. Finally, Mom told her she would. She called me, and stated she was going.

I said, "Thank you, Jesus, and thank you Aunt Martha."

When she entered the Center, it was full. Everyone sang happy Birthday. She was quite surprised. We've never been able to pull anything on Ms. Weesie before. Out of town family members were son, Leon Brookins and Evon Coppedge, Altamonte Springs, Florida, daughter, Marva Collins and husband Wesley, Windermere, Florida, Grandson, Noel Brookins, Orlando, Florida; Great Grand Kali Davis, Jacksonville, Florida; Special Cousin Clarence Bostick, Jacksonville, Florida; Nephew, Robert Walker, Daughter and friend, New Smyrna, Florida; Cousin, Kenyatta Rivers, Orlando, Florida, and his mother, sister, brother-in-law and niece, Wildwood, Florida.

Nieces, Hawanda and Gloria Walker, Atlanta, Georgia; and niece, Beatrice Berthser, Tampa, Florida, and many family and friends from surrounding area.

Son, Dennis Banks, who was in Rhode Island and wasn't able to attend, but was there in spirit. A special prayer by nephew, Byron Wilson was given.

Afterwards, some good food was served which consisted of baked ham, BBQ & baked chicken, macaroni and cheese, green beans, baked beans, collard greens, chicken and rice, linguini salad, cake and punch.

A very special thanks to my brother, Leon, who came days earlier before the party, because he and I wanted this occasion very much for our mother. Special thanks to Sis. Loreen Carter, Sis. Mary A. Rich, Sis. Mary Banks, Sis. Betty Prescott, Sis. Debra White, her daughter Judea Barkley, who helped me cook all of the food, and my cousin, Byron, who barbequed for us.

To Catherine Hill, host, who made everyone feel welcome. I can't thank everyone enough, for it took everyone who was in the building to make Mom's day so special. So very special. For someone who didn't want a party.

It's a week or so later and she hasn't stopped talking about her 90th birthday party yet. But most of all, she gives the honor and glory to the Lord for still being here. If I left anyone's name out, please take it for love because I'm getting older, too.

Waldo Historical Society Commemorative Bricks

The Waldo Historical Society will now be in charge of the commemorative bricks placed in Waldo's Veteran's Park. There will be three different brick locations.

The Veteran's bricks are at the entrance to the park in front of the Veteran's Memorial. The second area surrounds a tree in the park and is for remembering Waldo pioneers and residents.

The Waldo Historical Society will be starting a new area and those bricks will be placed in front of the caboose. This set of bricks will remember those who worked on the railroad in Waldo and in other areas.

If you would like to remember a veteran, a Waldo resident, or a railroad worker, please contact Fred Donaldson at 352-468-1726. The bricks will cost $40 each, and you can pick up a form at the Waldo Library or Waldo City Hall.

Butt Prints On The Wall

by Mary Sue Holton

Our young, creative minds and hard working imaginations kept us plenty busy as children. It's hard to think that we were four happy, healthy, perfectly content kids WITHOUT a single hand held electronic device between us. Quite unlike children today who depend on portable electronics which they can have with them every minute. Without them, I think they would surely go into complete meltdown.

We, however, had plenty of tricks up our sleeve to keep us from falling prey to boredom. Something that we wanted to steer clear of, lest Mama fill our emptiness with chores. We seldom had to be ushered out of the house or shooed from underfoot.

Our days belonged to the world outside of the house. We were free to fish from the old wooden bridge which crossed the creek in front of our home. Or slip down the steep bank and wade in the edge of the water which was heavy with tannin. Or follow it's winding path for a short hike in the woods. We had rope swings and bikes and a big barn to play in. And two fantastic dogs who were like additional children to our brood.

We returned to the yard each evening after supper and stayed there until Mama called us in for baths and bed. Or we often played on the large screened porch which ran across the front of the house. We never seemed to run out of things to do. Until Saturday nights.

It seemed that by the time we had been outside in the yard ALL DAY on Saturday, we had little interest in returning to it after supper. There was precious little on television after 8 o'clock that we found entertaining. And so we would migrate to one of the bedrooms. Usually the boys'. We occasionally played a board game such as monopoly or Chinese checkers, but even that didn't hold our interest for very long. It seemed that the ONLY thing likely to burn off the residual energy we had bottled up inside, was a good old fashioned pillow fight.

This is one of the most fantastic games EVER invented. It gives you the opportunity to unleash TONS of energy and no one gets hurt. It's a completely harmless way in which children are easily occupied while off loading the last bit of high octane fuel from their bodies before bedtime.

Larry and Ricky each had an old iron framed twin bed. The kind with REAL springs and not that sissy "box spring" stuff with absolutely no give in it. So the bouncing ability on these things were close to a trapeze. More than once we've bounced so high our heads hit the ceiling.....But this would ALWAYS be followed by a sharp "Alright young'uns. Don't make me have to come in there with a belt." And a quick decline in the height of our jumps. We would jump from one bed to the other, across the room, trying to keep from being tagged by whoever was "it". These beds were AMAZING. I guess I didn't have a true appreciation for them at the time because I didn't know anything else. But now, having slept on high dollar pillow tops, and every kind of Beauty Rest, Serta, Sealy and Simmons ever made, I can definitely give a big thumbs up to the old iron bed and coiled springs.

On one particular night we were having a combined pillow fight of sorts along with a tough man competition. Ricky and Larry were in a stand off to see who could take the most "punishment". And I, yes ME, got to dish out the hits.

One by one they braced themselves for the hit. Wadding the end of the pillow case up so that it fit into my hands, I wound up, drew back and WHAM! Laid it on whichever one whose turn it was. Each time, they would try to "out do" the last stunt. Ricky folded himself at his middle with his hands behind his back and offered his face as my next target. Without missing a beat I primed one up and blasted him square in the kisser sending him tumbling back across the bed in an overly exaggerated fall.

Larry refused to be outdone and poised himself on hands and knees atop his bed with his hind end offered as bullseye. It was IMPOSSIBLE to resist the temptation to land a good one right smack on his butt which seemed to be mocking me as he wiggled it from side to side. With every ounce of strength I had, I wound up, drew back, planted both feet solidly on the floor and painted his hiney with feathers. Once hit, he rolled completely over across the bed, coming down HARD as his butt hit the wall with a solid thud. The sheetrock gave way, and there in the side of the wall was a big hole, EXACTLY the size of Larry's rear end.

Ricky and I were immediately reduced to uncontrollable giggles. Larry, who was much more reserved and somber, stood looking at the hole, and obviously wondering how he was going to cover it up before mama reached the room. "Youngun's" We could hear the intolerance in her voice. "I'm fixing to wear out some behinds."

Quickly, Larry grabbed his bedspread, throwing it behind him and in front of the damaged wall, and then he sat himself at the far side of the bed, directly in front of the problem spot. With a great effort at innocence, he began whistling, casually and carefree. This was a habit he had when he knew that he was in trouble. He would attempt to distract everyone's attention from the issue at hand, by whistling.

Mama rounded the door with hands planted on each hip. "What's going on in here?" she demanded. Ricky and I were still in stitches on the floor.

"Um, what d'ya mean?" Larry feigned surprised confusion. Surveying the room, Mama saw nothing out of order, and after a stern warning for us to hold it down, she returned to her chair and picked up her crochet. Larry continued to whistle, and me and Ricky? We just kept laughing until tears ran down our faces.

Of course Mama wasn't very happy when she did finally see the damage. She made some remark to the effect that Larry could just "pay to fix it". That never happened. It remained there the rest of the years that I lived in that house. A tribute to Larry's most eloquent effort to "outdo" Ricky's wild antics.

When anyone asked "What happened to the wall". We would answer with great pride "That's Larry's butt print". But you know, now that I think about it, maybe he DID outdo Ricky that day. After all, how many people have a butt print on display???

A Little Bird Told Me by Lucy Roe Cook

This Little Bird hears that the Waldo Historical Society's Quilt

Show on the 23rd of June was a large success. Thanks to those who work so hard at their craft.

Vera Mauldin of Cracker Hill has filled her home with love. Her family has come to stay with her and she could not be more pleased for her silent home is now breathing with life. Welcome Keith, Carla, Anthony, Christian, Evon and Alex.

Micanopy Roundtable Discussion Attendees

Millie Keirnan, Mary Ann Rich, Penny Dodd, Vera Mauldin and Lucy Roe Cook recently visited the Micanopy Historical Society for the yearly Round Table Event.

Many Historical Societies get together in June to share ideas, successes and problems. They enjoy the exchanging of ideas. There is excitement down by the Caboose. The electrician is due soon and then we will be close to opening a Railroad Museum here in Waldo. I hope they have a little railroad engineer's cap to fit this little bird.

Thank you to all who have worked so hard on this event.

Try to get out to John Boy's Diner on 301. Good smells when this bird flies over. Oh yum!

The rains have been wonderful for water in our gardens and water in the bird baths around town. Splish splash

Get registered and vote in the next election. I like to put the sticker, I Voted, on the back of my tail feathers proudly know that "My Vote Counts"
