The Waldo Historical Society was invited to attend the October 15 Waldo Jr. High School Reunion at the Waldo Masonic Lodge. It was a joyous gathering of 70 of the circa 1950, 1960 and 1970 students of Waldo Jr. High School and their spouses.

What an exciting group of people they are. Reminiscing with old friends and new friends about growing up in Waldo, dancing to the music of Elvis and other singers and groups of the day.

There was a hula hoop contest, with a hands down winner. John Huguley was the Hula Hoop Energizer Bunny, out hula hooping all other contenders.

April Ashcom Meredith won a bubble gum blowing contest, and a delicious chicken dinner was supplied by Gator Q's of Waldo.

Watching the dancers, one might think you were watching "Dancing With The Stars," when Bobbi and Don Schenck got on the floor and showed us all how it is done. Just like in the movies, the crowd stood back in awe.

Thank you to Mary Ellen Haines Johnson and Cheryl Sherouse Johnson, for putting this memorable event together, and to all those who helped with the music, the decorations, the food and all who participated.

A very special thanks to Mr. Bob Haines, for without his Waldo Florida Group on Facebook, this reunion would have never happened.

City of Waldo News

Lisa Hill, Thelma Bay, Christine Hill and Jayne Davis, accepting plaques and thanks from City of Waldo Councilman, Chuck Hall.

At the October 11, 2011 Council Meeting, Chairman Chuck Hall on behalf of Mayor Louie Davis and Council Members Carolyn Wade, Rick Pisano, Irvin Jackson and Rodney Estes presented awards to Ms. Lisa Hill, Ms. Thelma Bay, Ms. Christine Hill and Jayne Davis.

Ms. Lisa Hill had a dream to run a "free" summer camp in Waldo for the area children. Her dream grew from a two week camp last summer to a full summer camp this year. The camp was held at the Waldo Community Center and truly made a difference in many area children's lives.

It afforded many children a summer camp experience that they may not have otherwise had.

Chairman Hall stated that Ms. Lisa and her helpers deserved a "gold medal" for their work at the camp. Ms. Lisa Hill stated that she had many helpers, but that Ms. Thelma Bay, Ms. Christine Hill and Ms. Jayne Davis were her daily supporters.

Ms. Hill also thanked the City for their support. Even though she now has a full time job, she is planning on running the camp again next summer. She will need help, money and supplies so if you are interested in helping Ms. Lisa keep this camp running please contact her.

Thank you ladies, again, for making a difference in Waldo and being a positive influence on our children.

Don't Forget the W3C's Annual Seniors Thanksgiving Dinner

Waldo Community Center News by Monica Kish

First, I would like to thank the people of Waldo who have welcomed me so warmly into their midst. Next, I would like to invite those seniors (60 and over) who have not yet joined us to check out our ongoing activities. All are welcome to join us for Zumba Gold every Thursday from 10 am to 11 am. Come and learn the card game of Canasta or maybe you'd like to try Mexican Dominos played every Wednesday at 10 am. We are also looking into having a presentation on tracing your ancestry. More on that soon. If anyone has a talent they would like to share with our seniors, please give me a call. I am at the Center Monday through Friday from 9 am to 1 pm. Stop in and say hello, and see what's happening at your Community Center. Lunch is also available for those 60 and over. Call (352) 468-2336 for details. See you there.

Waldo Community School News
by William Powell, Principal

Fall is in the air and Waldo Community School is preparing the annual Fall Festival. It will be held Thursday, October 27th from 5:30-8:30pm. There will be lots of activities, good food, and good times. Come join the fun!

If you have driven by the school, you have probably noticed that it is beginning to take on a different look. All of the windows in the main building have been replaced. The color of the school is changing and that is underway right now. Most of the buildings have been painted in the new color scheme that the School Advisory Committee chose last year. We will be having work done on the front porch soon to have it enlarged to make it safer to use. We are excited about the changes and the new look.

We also have a new look for our school shirts. We have brought back a design that was used many years ago and created by a former student, Steve White, who is the son of Sandy White, our database person/receptionist. We chose the design to honor Sandy for her 30+ years of service to Waldo Community School. She will be retiring in December. If anyone would like to purchase a shirt, just stop by the school.

We have over 200 students this year with 10 classrooms. Several of our classrooms are multi-age.

Teachers have been working hard on meeting the academic needs of the students as the demands get greater each year with the requirements from the state.

We did increase our score last year by 21 points, but remained a C. Our goal is to continue to improve and raise that this year.

We had a fundraiser earlier this year. The students sold coupon books. We were very happy with the funds we were able to raise: about $1200. We will use that to help keep our technology up to date.

Did you know that one bulb for the Smart Boards cost about $200?

The month of November has many days that students will not be in school. November 4th is the UF Homecoming. November 11th is Veterans Day. November 23rd-25th we will be celebrating Thanksgiving.

Our rocking chairs are always out front. If you'd like to come read with a child and rock some, just give us a call.

Presidential Thanksgiving Pardons!

Thanksgiving 2011 will mark the 64th anniversary of the National Thanksgiving Turkey presentation. Live Thanksgiving turkeys have been presented to presidents since the days of Abe Lincoln. However, the current form of the ceremony dates back to President Harry Truman in 1947.

The turkey (and its alternate) are pardoned by the President on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving. The ceremony traditionally takes place on the White House Rose Garden, and is a wonderful photo shoot opportunity. The lucky turkey will then be sent to Disneyland, where it will be the grand marshal of the Disney Thanksgiving Day Parade.

The tradition's origin is uncertain. One story claims that Harry Truman pardoned a turkey in 1947, but the Truman Library has been unable to find any evidence for this. Another claims that the tradition dates back to Abraham Lincoln, in October 1863, pardoning his son Tad's pet turkey. Both of these stories have been cited in recent presidential speeches.

Interestingly, the great American public is allowed to vote for the turkeys' names on the White House web site. 2007 lucky birds were 'May' and 'Flower'. In 2006 the turkeys pardoned were named Flyer and Fryer. While in 2005, turkeys named Marshmallow and Yam were spared. 2004's were named Biscuit and Gravy; and 2003's were Stars and Stripes. The 2008 winners, who were pardoned were Pumpkin and Pecan.

President Obama made the official 2009 presidential Thanksgiving pardon on Wednesday, November 25. A turkey called 'Courage' was spared along with an alternative called 'Carolina'. Which turkey will be pardoned this year?

On Wednesday, November 24, 2010, President Obama gave two turkeys named Apple and Cider a last-minute reprieve. Obama made light of the event. "Let me say that it feels pretty good to stop at least one shellacking this November," he said, referring to the drubbing that Democrats took in the midterm elections, which Obama described as a "shellacking."

A Little Bird Told Me
by Lucy Roe Cook

The smell of fresh fish frying is wonderful on a Friday morning. Randy Hall caught a mess of Perch and Buddy Thompson was frying it on the porch at the Community Center. I prefer mine uncooked. Other food was served.

Mary Ann Rich was in the kitchen cooking such foods as Salmon balls and eggs and biscuits brought by Marilyn Thompson. There was fresh fruit, sausage, grits, little cakes, and milk and cereal brought by Millie Keirman. Fresh coffee brewing smelled wonderful.

In attendance were Buddy and Marilyn Thompson, Mary Ann Rich, Charles Griffin, Vera Mauldin, Lucy Roe Cook, Penny Dodd, Jane Davis, Rayford English, Cat Hill, George Barkley, Food Manager, Monica Kish, Monique Taylor, Millie Keirman, Kim Worley, and Oscar White.

Cat White will be missed by all who knew her. You may have seen her walking home in the vicinity of the Community Center from the school cafeteria where she worked.

Lucy Cook and Penny Dodd were on their way to a Homecoming meeting at the Community Center one evening, several years ago, when they saw a woman hollering and dancing around in the road. Lucy put down her window, and asked what was wrong.

Cat yelled, "Snake, Snake." They told her to jump in the car, and drove her to the Community Center.

From then on, Penny and Lucy always called her the "Snake Lady." Cat always laughed at that. Even though we've lost a friend, we still have wonderful memories.

I was flying over the Eastern Star building when I noticed a new pond. If it gets any bigger, you'll be able to bring your fishing pole. I don't know about licensing, but this Little Bird doesn't need a license. Check it out.

Lucy Roe Cook says "Thank You" for the prayers for her grandson, Carson Roe Andrijanoff, and prayer is needed for the grandson of Joyce Land, Stephen Gladney Lowery.

A goose named Lucy now lives at the home of Vic and Marie Ankney on Cracker Hill. It follows them around like a watch dog and is a wonderful guard goose, letting them know when anyone's coming (honk honk).

Remember two words: Thanks and Giving. Give Thanks and be Giving.

Happy Thanksgiving

Waldo Florida Group

A Place Called Cracker Hill
By Mary Sue Holton

It was mentioned that one of the purposes of the Waldo, Florida Group on Facebook was so that some of us native Waldonians, as well as the welcome "transplants", could share some of our fondest memories. And so, here are a few of mine:

Cherry cokes from the Drugstore – sipped through a paper straw while twirling around on one of the bar stools which graced the length of the soda counter.

Living at the bottom of Cracker Hill, with neighbors Clark and Juanita Smith, whose home place offered none less than 7 live artesian wells. One, left uncapped, offered a place for the gaggle of neighborhood kids to cool down on many a hot summer day.

Walking 'neath the massive water tower, staring up and wondering if it touched the clouds.

Imagining that "someday" I'd find the courage to climb it. But knowing that I wouldn't dare, even if I weren't afraid.

Having a wonderful, kindly school custodian, Mr. Prevatt, who also served as mayor for a time. (He could make his eyes "dance"). He was funny, engaging, and pleasantly social. And he was the first male, outside of the family, who I remember telling me I was "pretty". Even though I thought he was just saying it to be nice.

Having a gracious, caring kindergarten teacher, Sara Winters, who gathered 5 or 6 of us up each day after school, and drove us home in her station wagon. Even though it wasn't her place and didn't fall under the scope of her "assigned duties".

Having a police chief, Jim Huckleba, that a single mother with 2 chicken-livered daughters could call at 9:00 pm on Sunday night after church, because they were too afraid to walk into an empty, dark house alone. And NEVER, EVER did he make us feel that it was an imposition for him to perform this "safety check" for us. If ever I had a living, breathing hero, it was certainly Jim Huckleba.

Having an incredible Principal, Hugh Noe, who secretly slipped money into my little sister's lunch account because we were too poor to afford a .25 lunch ticket for her

Having a bus driver, Mr Gunter, who knew something was wrong when I didn't show up at the bus stop on field trip day (1st grade class was going to Camp Crystal). So he drove that big yellow bus to the bottom of Cracker Hill, squeezed it through the stand of pines on each side of our long, narrow driveway, and found me sitting there, lunch bag in hand, still crying because I thought I would miss the trip when a dead car battery kept Mama from getting us to our designated bus stop

Having a resident "Avon Lady", Ms. Drew, who would secretly gift me with tiny lipstick samples, and once gave me an entire tube of lipstick, called Tootie Fruitie (which I was forbidden to wear). My brother Ricky began teasingly, to call me "Tootie" and it stuck. To this day, I'm "Aunt Tootie" to all of my nieces and nephews

Living in the "Yerkes" days and knowing first hand, that Father Yerkes felt a genuine and sincere burden for the people of his adopted home. That he executed kindness to EVERY person who ever had the good fortune to cross his path. That he embodied the true "goodness" of Christianity, and was able to seek out and find some glimmer of "good" in everyone. That he managed to salvage the souls of some who would otherwise surely have been lost. That he was able to notch out a place for himself in our community that retrospectively, none of us can now imagine without him. That he left his indelible mark upon the hearts and lives of many, and continues to live through their ongoing labors of love.

Having a kindly butcher and part owner of the Waldo Supermarket, Pat Oglesby, who would occasionally slip a small package of meat into our grocery sack as we walked out past the meat counter. I guess he knew that we were far too poor to afford meat in the lean years after Daddy left.

Living among wonderful, kind hearted, hard working folks who offered words of encouragement to a bashful, often backwards young girl. Who forgave my imperfections. Overlooked my mistakes and waited patiently for me to find MY place.

And lastly, being blessed to be included in the embrace of friendship, caring and kindness of Bobbi and Don Schenck. No other couple do I know who has given more to the Waldo Community. Tirelessly and without defeat, they have given themselves to the service of doing, giving, sharing and promoting ALL things good. Even in the face of their own personal, devastating loss, they have continued to be prominent and proud Waldonians, valiant leaders, and selfless givers. They inspire, motivate and encourage. They are to be recognized as one of the greatest gifts the Community of Waldo has ever had bestowed upon it.

These are a FEW of my favorite memories. And the cornerstones of my beginning. A journey that began HUMBLY, weathered MUCH, advanced SLOWLY, endured BRAVELY, and led me to a place where all I can think about is going back "home." To the simple, easy, carefree childhood that played out some 50 years ago at the bottom of a dirt road called Cracker Hill.

You Won't Miss It Till It's Gone

Bobby Cook

In case you haven't noticed, the service provided by the Waldo

post office is s i m p l y outstanding. However, the post office is facing budget problems and it appears that cuts will be made. I have no way to know what cuts will be made and can only hope that our post office isn't one of the cuts. What I do know is based on common sense. Every package mailed at the Waldo post office increases the chances of our post office being spared in the next round of budget cuts. Conversely, every package we ship through other carriers increases the chances of our post office being greatly curtailed or eliminated altogether.

Forty years ago, I was a fan of the private sector and remain so to this day. I emphatically believed that such services would always be better if provided by the private sector. I believed that competition was sufficient to force service up and prices down. However this hasn't been the case in the package delivery market. The private sector delivery service is highly competitive, yet price is up and service is down.

Market forces are highly complex and I don't claim to be an expert but I do have a theory that might explain why we have high prices and poor service in a competitive market. When I order something from a mail order catalog, they have given me good service if they process the order timely, package the right product carefully, and ship it quickly. I can't hold them responsible for shipping problems because they are not about the status of my delivery, they give responsible for the delivery. If I inquire me the shipping date and advise me to call the delivery service. When they give me that phone number, they are finished with me. Any problem after that is between me and the delivery company.

You Won't Miss It - Page 5

The delivery company doesn't really want to talk to me. They have no reason to worry about me because they are busy with other things and I'm not their customer. Their customer is the catalog company with whom I placed the order. If my package is a day late, why would they care? If my package is two weeks late, they really don't seem to care. They have a contract with the catalog company and I am not their customer. An isolated incident of a delayed package will not affect their contract involving thousands of deliveries. In essence, my voice has been totally diluted, forever lost in the anonymity of huge numbers.

So when you are mailing something, you have a choice. You can choose to support our local post office which is currently giving outstanding service with a smile. They know every person who walks in is their customer and their service has never been better. We need a Waldo post office and they need and deserve our support.

Don't take the Waldo post office for granted. Times are tough and where you mail your packages really does matter. Support the Waldo post office. Your package could make a difference.

A Tribute To Cat Marie Ankney

This is my way of saying Goodbye to a dear friend who I miss greatly. All I can do now is remember a good person and a friend to all. The times we had going shopping. Her favorite places were Ward's, Albertson's and WalMart. Isn't it funny that Albertson's closed on the day she passed away.

She and I would get up early to go shopping and always end up at the Chinese restaurant. We would eat and laugh about silly things and just have fun. If I was a few minutes late she would call and say, "Mr. Vic, has she left yet?"

And BINGO! She loved it. And eating hot dogs and drinking soda while we played.

But to tell Cat a joke was really funny. I would tell her a joke. She would just look at me. A half hour later she would burst into laughter and say, "I got it."

And to see her on her bench at school. I'll never forget. I will see her there every day, sitting with her feet about six inches off the sidewalk.

Her telling me one day last year, "You know, I am not afraid of dying because I believe when God is ready for me, he will come and get me."

She would say, "I can't wait till I retire, so I can sit and work on my quilt and knit.

God, I ask you - please give her a big soft chair, a footstool and a warm blanket, and please let her rest in your arms. I love you, Cat. Keep a place for me. Love, Marie Ankney

Added by William Powell, Principal of Waldo Community School:

Cat had a special spot on campus where she sat. I think everyone knows where that is. It is the bench down near the corner of the south entrance to the lunchroom. That corner will be called, "Cat's Corner".

We had a plaque made that will hang on the wall near that corner that says, "Cat's Corner." I shared that with her yesterday and took a picture. She said she felt honored.

Watch for flyers next time. You will be surprised at the great items.

Dear Gabby

Dear Gabby.

If you have a friend and have tried to tell this friend of the danger in what they are doing to self and others to no avail.

Do I continue, which seems to hurt and anger them or do I shut up? Signed: Concerned Friend

Dear Concerned Friend

The decision of a person to stop doing something, whether it is drugs, smoking, etc. has to come from within this person. They know they have to stop and they want to stop. They are not strong enough to start the process. They may suffer from depression and need to seek professional help. When a person is depressed they see life as hopeless and do not have the will power or capability to help themselves. It is sad to see a friend or anyone destroying their life.

Please continue to support this person. They need friends in their life who care about them. Let them know you are there for them and will not judge them. Please continue to encourage them to get help.

Good luck, Gabby
